DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bowman et al. (US 2002/0174431 A1) in view of Wu (US 6,442,570).

Regarding claims 1, 8, 15, Bowman et al. teaches that for use in a communications system, an apparatus for wireless software download to a wireless communications device capable of Internet access wherein the software to be downloaded is retrieved from a remote server through a wireless connection for the wireless communications device (see paragraph [0029]).

Bowman et al. does not teach an auxiliary device including sufficient storage for holding software to be downloaded; and a connection between the wireless communications device and the auxiliary device, wherein the software is to be downloaded to the auxiliary device and installed from the auxiliary device onto the wireless communications device.

However, Wu teaches an auxiliary device (e.g., removable memory card 112 – Fig. 1) including sufficient storage for holding software to be downloaded (see column 4, lines 30-34); and a connection between the wireless communications device and the auxiliary device (see Fig.

1), wherein the software is to be downloaded to the auxiliary device and installed from the auxiliary device onto the wireless communications device (see column 4, lines 40-42).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to apply the teaching of Wu to the teaching of Bowman et al. to expand the memory of the portable device as taught in Wu (see column 4, lines 30-34).

Regarding claims 2, 9, 16, the combination of Bowman et al. and Wu teaches the apparatus according to claim 1, wherein the auxiliary device lacks a connection to the remote server independent of the connection between the wireless communications device and the auxiliary device (Wu Fig. 1).

Regarding claims 4, 11, 18, the combination of Bowman et al. and Wu teaches the apparatus according to claim 1, wherein the software to be downloaded is retrieved by the auxiliary device from the remote server through an Internet connection provided by the wireless communications device (see Bowman paragraph [0029] and Wu column 4, lines 40-42).

Regarding claims 6, 13, 20, the combination of Bowman et al. and Wu teaches the apparatus according to claim 1, wherein the software downloaded to the auxiliary device, when installed on the wireless communications device, replaces software on the wireless device at a time of the software download (see Wu column 4, lines 40-42).

Regarding claims 7, 14, the combination of Bowman et al. and Wu teaches the apparatus according to claim 1, wherein the software downloaded to the auxiliary device is retained after installation on the wireless communications device and reused for installation on other similar wireless communications devices (see Wu column 4, lines 36-38).

Regarding claims 5, 12, and 19, the combination of Bowman et al. and Wu teaches the claimed invention except that the wireless communications device is a mobile telephone and the auxiliary device is a personal digital assistant. However, it would be an obvious matter of design choice to use a mobile telephone as a wireless communications device and a PDA as an auxiliary device since the invention would perform equally well with the wireless communications device being a mobile telephone and the auxiliary device being a PDA.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

- Sawano et al. (US 2001/0039212 A1) teaches portable game machine with download capability.
- Abecassis, Max teaches intermittently playing a video.
